Study Abroad in London: MATE 2730 Summer Course!

Looking to broaden your global perspective while staying on track with your degree? Here's an exciting opportunity open to all engineering students, including ME majors!

This spring and summer, you can complete MATE 2730: Introduction to Materials Engineering — a required course for several engineering programs — through a unique hybrid experience that begins on campus and concludes with a study-abroad component in London. Application Deadline is Monday, December 1, 2025.

Program Overview

- Course: MATE 2730 (Intro to Materials Engineering)
- Prerequisites: CHEM 1670 or CHEM 1770, and MATH 1650
- Instructor: Dr. Pete Collins
- On-Campus Meetings: Thursdays, 4:00–7:00 p.m., starting mid-March
- Study Abroad Portion: London, May 18–June 13

Why ME Students Should Consider This Program

- Satisfy a required course in a small, interactive class
- Global exposure to engineering and cultural sites in London
- Enhance your materials knowledge — valuable for design, manufacturing, and advanced ME coursework
- Enjoy plenty of summer afterward to continue traveling or return home
